White Paper / Intelligence Memo

Title: AUKUS AND BRICKS OR FEDERAL EUROPE: APRIL 12th DECIDES

Author: Daniel Vidosh

Date: 2026/2/19

---

Executive Summary

Hungary stands at a crossroads: either continue being a junior partner in a self-flagellating, multicultural, politically correct European project (funding 10 million Ukrainians while maintaining a defensive posture for an Indiana-sized territory that will never, ever belong to them) or pivot decisively toward a coalition that respects Hungarian tradition, culture, and national pride: namely, AUKUS and BRICS, alongside Traditionalist Russia, a Brexited UK under Nigel Farage, and a Traditionalist America.

This memo evaluates the costs and benefits of each path, offering a brutally honest assessment for policymakers tired of “Euro-federalist virtue signaling” and ready to reclaim strategic sovereignty.

Scenario A: Federalist, Islamisation-Tinged Europe (The German-Ukrainian Swamp)

Costs:

- Cultural dilution: Hungarian traditions, religion, and national identity subordinated to German multiculturalism and post-revolutionary political correctness.
- Financial hemorrhage: Billions drained to support a Ukrainian buffer zone for Russia—effectively paying for a war that is not ours.
- Military depletion: Hungarian armed forces hollowed out to satisfy NATO obligations and EU “collective defense” fantasies.
- Sovereignty erosion: Decisions increasingly dictated by Brussels bureaucrats and Frankfurt bankers, with zero input on who gets to walk the streets of Budapest.
- Social fatigue: Citizens forced into multicultural, anti-traditionalist frameworks that clash with national psyche, increasing domestic discontent.

Benefits:

- Illusory security: A vague promise that “we are safer together” while neighboring Germany actively designs Hungary’s post-traditionalist future.
  - EU subsidies: Short-term economic injections—at the cost of long-term autonomy.
  - Moral superiority points: Public virtue signaling for Brussels elites and progressive media.

Scenario B: AUKUS + BRICS Alignment (Traditionalist Anglo-Russian Axis)

Costs:

- Initial friction: EU sanctions and political backlash, potential diplomatic isolation in Europe.
- Economic adjustment: Short-term transition pains as Hungarian trade pivots from EU-centric to AUKUS and BRICS-centric markets.
- Perceived “provocation”: Risks ire from Ukraine-aligned factions and German federalists.

Benefits:

- Cultural alignment: Policies respect Hungarian religion, traditions, and societal norms—citizen-first governance restored.
  - Strategic leverage: Partnership with nuclear and economic heavyweights (US, UK, Australia, Russia, China, India) offers genuine influence in global matters.
  - Financial independence: Freed from EU forced contributions and endless subsidies for territories that will never belong to Hungary.
  - Military modernization: Access to advanced technology and joint exercises without being a pawn in Brussels’ moralized conflict theater.
  - Sovereignty regained: Hungary regains agency over borders, migration, and domestic law without politically correct oversight.

Intelligence Assessment:

In Daniel Vidosh’s opinion:

“Hungary is better off in an Anglo-Russian-BRICS orbit than continuing to hemorrhage culture, funds, and military in the service of a Federalist Europe that has no loyalty to Hungarian life or legacy. Aligning with Traditionalist Russia, Traditionalist America, a Brexited UK, and AUKUS is not just preferable—it is existentially necessary. If Europe wants to fight Russians while depleting its own resources and morality, Hungary should stop pretending to belong to that theater and reclaim its narrative.”

In short: Drain the German-Ukrainian swamp, or become it.

Strategic Recommendation:

- Formalize partnerships with AUKUS nations and BRICS, focusing on trade, military modernization, and cultural preservation.
  - Reduce dependence on EU funding and defense obligations that conflict with national interest.
  - Restore citizen pact: Reinforce social and legal frameworks that place Hungarian tradition and national identity above external multiculturalist pressure.
  - Communicate decisively: Frame the pivot not as isolation, but as reclaiming sovereignty and self-determination in a post-globalist, humanist world.

Memo Classification: Top Secret / Darkly Humorous

Distribution: Hungarian Parliament, National Security Council, INTELKARTEL Members
